Camden County Historical Society Exhibit at Camden County College

Exhibit features RCA history

Photos by AL SCHELL/Courier-Post

A multimedia lecture was part of the recent exhibit 'RCA: A Look at Camden's Industrial History' held at Camden County College's Connector Building on the Blackwood campus. The event was a joint effort by the College and the Camden County Historical Society, which has the region's largest collection of RCA memorabilia. Above, retirees Vince Valente of Indian Mills (left) and Marvin Sheckman of Cherry Hill were among those at the event celebrating the history of the industrial giant that once employed thousands in Camden. Included in the display were a 1954 RCA radio (bottom, left) made of Bakelite plastic that was produced in Camden and replicas of the company's trademark dog, Nipper.
